

HOMINID TRACKWAY: Most of the 54 footprints are shown, going north in two parallel trails. A rather large section near the middle of the trails is not shown, since it is devoid of tracks (probably due to erosion). This illustration is reprinted here, with a few modifications, with the kind permission of the artist, Laurie Grace, and may be copied only for the non-commercial classroom activity as described in this lesson. For any other use, commercial or otherwise, permission from the artist is required. Adapted from Scientific American, Sept. 1998, pp. 47-49, "Preserving the Laetoli Footprints" by Neville Agnew and Martha Demas.